Introduction

VA Mission: To fulfill President Lincoln's promise –

"...To care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan..."

- Abraham Lincoln

The purpose of the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) fiduciary program is to ensure VA benefit payments made to a fiduciary on behalf of a beneficiary are used for the well-being of the beneficiary and the beneficiary's dependents. Our mission is to protect Veterans and beneficiaries who are unable to manage their financial affairs.

Information in this booklet focuses on the responsibilities of a fiduciary, communication between the fiduciary and beneficiary, rights of a beneficiary, and frequently asked questions.

The intent of this booklet is to provide guidance to you, a new fiduciary. It will help you to understand your responsibilities, perform your duties, and facilitate open communication between you and the beneficiaries you serve.

Key Terms

Beneficiary – A Veteran, or his/her survivor, who has been awarded VA benefits but who is unable to manage his/her VA funds as a result of injury, disease, the infirmities of advanced age, or being less than 18 years of age.

Fiduciary – An individual or entity that has been appointed by VA to receive VA funds on behalf of a beneficiary for the use and benefit of the beneficiary and his/her dependents.

Dependent – The beneficiary's spouse, child, or parent who does not have enough income to meet his/her needs for personal care and well-being and who obtains support for such needs from the beneficiary.

Relative – An adopted child or a person who is related to a beneficiary by blood or marriage.

Helping You Manage Your New Responsibility

Responsibilities to the Beneficiary

As a fiduciary, you must know what the beneficiary's needs are so that you can decide how to use the beneficiary's funds for his/her personal care and well-being. Your decision must be based on the beneficiary's unique circumstances, needs, desires, beliefs, and values. Beneficiaries in the fiduciary program are entitled to the same standard of living as any other individual with similar financial resources.

It is important that you keep in regular contact with the beneficiary and make sure that he/she always has your current contact information. You should also make sure the beneficiary receives proper medical care, to include contacting social workers and mental health professionals as necessary.

Responsibilities to VA

As a fiduciary, you must notify VA of any changes (see page 6) in the beneficiary's circumstances. It is also important that you respond to VA in a timely manner, meet with VA personnel when requested, and comply with our regulations. Please visit <http://benefits.va.gov/fiduciary/references.asp> and click Fiduciary Federal Regulation (38 CFR, Part 13 – Fiduciary Activities) to view our regulations.

Managing Beneficiary Funds

As a fiduciary, you must ensure all of the beneficiary's bills are sent to you and that each bill is paid on time. You are also responsible for paying the beneficiary's income taxes, when applicable, collecting any rent or unpaid debts on behalf of the beneficiary, and getting insurance if needed. As fiduciary, you are required to keep separate financial accounts on behalf of a beneficiary. The law requires a fiduciary to manage and place beneficiary funds in reasonable, safe investments, protect the funds from creditors and any loss, and provide additional protection when required by VA. (See pages 14, 15, and 16 for further information.)

Note: The general rule regarding keeping separate accounts does not apply to fiduciaries that are spouses, state/local government entities, or certain health care facilities.

Communication with VA

You may receive VA-generated correspondence on behalf of the beneficiary. You must respond to all requests from VA. The correspondence will describe how and when you should respond. VA may request:

- An accounting of the beneficiary's funds. (See page 17 for accounting requirements.)
- Information to verify the beneficiary's eligibility for VA benefits.
- Information used to confirm dependents of the beneficiary.
- Information to verify school attendance for the beneficiary's dependents.

Reporting Changes to VA

Changes in Beneficiary's Circumstance

As a fiduciary, you are responsible for reporting important changes in the beneficiary's circumstances to VA, such as:

- Address or phone number
- Income
- Medical condition
- Marriage
- Divorce
- Birth or adoption of a child
- Incarceration
- Felony conviction
- Hospitalization
- Death
- Changes that show the beneficiary no longer requires a fiduciary. For example, the beneficiary knows the amounts and sources of his/her funds, is able to pay his/her expenses on time, and/or saves money.

Changes in Fiduciary's Circumstance

You must also report any changes in your circumstance, such as:

- Address and phone number
- Changes that may affect your ability to perform as a fiduciary or if you decide to stop being a fiduciary. Some reasons you may stop serving as a fiduciary for a beneficiary include:
 - Illness
 - Feeling threatened by the beneficiary
 - Personal family matters
 - Felony conviction

Important Note: You must notify VA as soon as possible when you decide you can no longer serve as fiduciary. You cannot stop being the fiduciary until you receive notice from VA about the transfer of the beneficiary's VA funds to another fiduciary.

Communication with the Beneficiary

You must keep open and regular communication with the beneficiary about his/her VA benefits. You must provide your current contact information to the beneficiary. Likewise, you should make sure that you always have the beneficiary's current contact information.

You must respond to the beneficiary in a reasonable amount of time when you are contacted. The beneficiary must be able to contact you by phone, mail or email. Also, you must speak with the beneficiary on a regular basis to assess his/her needs.

Changes in the beneficiary's circumstances may change the beneficiary's eligibility for VA benefits. You may need to help the beneficiary complete forms and/or submit documentation that may affect his/her eligibility to receive VA benefits. You may also need to address any changes in the beneficiary's circumstances that at a minimum:

- May have a positive or negative affect on the amount of his/her VA benefits;
- Require an adjustment in how you use VA funds; or
- May indicate the beneficiary is able to manage his/her own VA funds.

Rights of the Beneficiary

Beneficiaries in VA's fiduciary program have rights. These rights include, but are not limited to, the right to be notified when VA appoints a fiduciary and to appeal that appointment to the Board of Veterans' Appeals. The beneficiary may also request that VA replace the current fiduciary with a new fiduciary.

The beneficiary has a right to the fiduciary's name and current contact information. The beneficiary has a right to contact the fiduciary to request funds, account balance information, a copy of the fiduciary's VA-approved accounting, and other information or assistance consistent with the responsibilities of a fiduciary.

The beneficiary also has a right to request removal from the fiduciary program and direct payment of VA funds.

Additional VA Benefits the Beneficiary May Be Eligible For

The beneficiary's disability may prevent him/her from seeking information from VA or understanding information provided by VA. In order for you to assist the beneficiary, it is important that you have a general understanding of VA benefits. Some of the more common VA additional benefits include:

- Aid and Attendance (A&A) – Additional benefits for a Veteran or surviving spouse:
 - Who requires the aid of another person in order to perform personal functions required in everyday living; or
 - Who is a patient in a nursing home due to mental or physical incapacity; or
 - Who is blind or meets other specific visual requirements.
- Housebound – Additional benefits paid for a Veteran or surviving spouse:
 - Who is confined to his/her immediate premises because of permanent disability; or
 - Who has one disability rated at 100 percent, plus other disability(ies) separately rated at 60 percent or more.
- Dependency – Additional benefits paid to certain adult beneficiaries who have a dependent spouse, child, or parent. For example, if the beneficiary marries, the new spouse is a dependent and the beneficiary may qualify for additional benefits.

Note: Please visit www.va.gov for additional information on VA benefits. Click Benefits Booklet under Veteran Services, then Chapter 2: Veterans with Service-Connected Disabilities.

Pre-need Burial Plans

A VA fiduciary may use a beneficiary's VA funds to make deposits into or purchase a pre-need burial plan or burial insurance if you determine that it is in the best interest of the beneficiary to have such a plan or insurance. The pre-need burial plan should be registered in the beneficiary's name and made payable to the service provider.

Death of the Beneficiary

The beneficiary is not entitled to VA benefits for the month in which he/she dies, even if the individual dies on the last day of the month. Therefore, unless you are the beneficiary's spouse, you must return these funds immediately to VA.

Any saved VA benefits belong to the beneficiary's estate and must generally be given to the legal representative of the beneficiary's estate. You may contact the probate court or an attorney for further information.

If the beneficiary dies without a will or heirs, you must return any remaining VA funds to VA. You may contact your fiduciary hub of jurisdiction for further information. (See page 31 for contact information.)

Frequently Asked Questions

How Can I Use the Beneficiary's VA Funds?

Your main responsibility is to manage the beneficiary's VA funds to meet the needs of the beneficiary. First, use VA funds to pay the expenses that meet the basic needs of the beneficiary and his/her dependents, such as rent or mortgage payments, utilities, or groceries. You must make all payments either by check or electronic bill payment from the fiduciary account. ATM withdrawals, counter withdrawals, and checks made payable to cash are not acceptable transactions.

You may use any remaining VA funds to provide the beneficiary and his/her dependents the best possible standard of living that VA funds will reasonably allow, such as new furniture, a new car, or a vacation.

You cannot borrow or make loans from the beneficiary's VA funds.

What Is a Retroactive VA Payment?

Approval of VA claims may take some time or VA may approve an effective date of payment prior to the actual date of receipt of a claim for benefits. This creates a retroactive payment of funds which is paid in a lump-sum.

How Can I Use a Retroactive VA Payment?

You must first use any retroactive VA funds to pay the expenses that meet the basic needs of the beneficiary and his/her dependents, such as rent and food. You may use any remaining retroactive VA funds to pay for better health care or allow the beneficiary and his/her dependents to enjoy a standard of living like other people who have a similar amount of money.

How Do I Maintain the Beneficiary's VA Funds?

As a fiduciary, there are rules you have to follow when managing the beneficiary's VA funds:

- You must keep VA funds in an account in a federally insured bank or credit union.
- You must have VA funds direct-deposited into the account.
- You must establish the account in the beneficiary's name and your name, and identify the fiduciary relationship. The title of the account will show the beneficiary has ownership of, but not access to, VA funds. For example:

(Beneficiary's Name), by (Your Name), Fiduciary

(Your Name), Fiduciary for (Beneficiary's Name)

Your bank or credit union can answer any questions that you may have about this requirement.

- You must keep the beneficiary's VA funds in an account separate from your funds or anyone else's funds. However, the general rule about keeping a separate account does not apply to the following fiduciaries:
 - Spouses
 - State or local government entities
 - Institutions, such as public or private medical care facilities, nursing homes, or other residential care facilities, when an accounting is not required

Note: In order to keep the funds secure, do not give the account number to the beneficiary. You must also safeguard all passwords.

How May I Invest the Beneficiary's VA Funds?

An investment must be reasonable, safe, and in the best interest of the beneficiary. As fiduciary, you are only allowed to invest the beneficiary's VA funds in interest or dividend-paying accounts that are insured under Federal law or in U.S. Savings Bonds.

A properly registered savings bond can only be cashed in with written authorization from VA. U.S. Savings Bonds must be registered as follows:

(Beneficiary's Name), (Beneficiary's Social Security Number), under custodianship by designation of the Secretary of Veterans Affairs

The general rule about investment of VA funds does not apply to the following fiduciaries:

- Spouses
- A fiduciary who is also appointed by a court

Note: VA funds paid to the chief officer of an institution in which the beneficiary is being furnished hospital treatment or institutional, nursing, or domiciliary care may not be invested.

How Do I Protect the Beneficiary's VA Funds?

If you manage more than $20,000 in VA funds for the beneficiary, VA may require you to guard the beneficiary's funds by purchasing and maintaining a corporate surety bond. The bond replaces the beneficiary's funds if you commit fraud or if you waste or misuse the beneficiary's funds.

Corporate Surety Bond Requirements

An individual corporate surety bond provides the most secure protection of the beneficiary's funds. A surety bond company provides insurance that protects the beneficiary's funds. As long as you are the fiduciary and continue to pay the bond premiums, the beneficiary's funds are protected up to the face value of the bond. You are authorized to deduct the cost of a surety bond from the beneficiary's VA funds. VA personnel periodically contact the bonding company to make sure the surety bond is in effect and the information is current. A surety bond must be made payable to:

The Secretary of Veterans Affairs for the use and benefit of (Beneficiary's Name).

The surety bond must include the following information:

- The amount of the bond;
- The names of the fiduciary and beneficiary;
- The name of the surety bond company; and
- Affirmation from the surety bond company that they will pay the bond.

The general rule about obtaining a corporate surety bond does not apply to the following fiduciaries:

- Spouses
- A fiduciary that is also appointed by a court
- A fiduciary that is a trust company or a bank with trust powers organized under the laws of the U.S. or a state
- A fiduciary in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, or any other territory of the U.S., or in the Republic of the Philippines, whose location precludes adequate bonding and has a restricted withdrawal agreement in lieu of a corporate surety bond

Note: You will find a listing of surety bond companies and additional information on surety bonds at <http://www.fms.treas.gov/c570/c570.html>.

How Do I Protect VA Funds From the Claims of Creditors?

In addition to protecting the beneficiary's VA funds from misuse, you must also protect the funds from the claims of creditors.

- No one can make claims on VA funds except the Internal Revenue Service.
- A fiduciary may pay a creditor if the beneficiary has VA funds to pay the creditor, but VA funds should first go to pay for the beneficiary's basic needs.
- Consult with VA on any claim on the beneficiary's VA funds.

What Records Should I Keep?

You are responsible for keeping accurate records of the beneficiary's VA funds. You should keep detailed records of all payments. Keep the following types of records:

- Bills – Rent/Mortgage statements, utilities, cable, credit card, medical, vehicle, insurance, etc.
- Receipts – Payments made on behalf of the beneficiary and his/her dependents for items such as groceries, clothing, appliances, vehicle repairs, home repairs, etc.
- Financial Statements – Bank statements for the accounts into which VA funds are deposited.
- VA Forms – Forms used for initial application or changes to fiduciary or beneficiary status (example VA Form 21P-4703, Fiduciary Agreement).
- Correspondence from VA – Fiduciary appointment documents, approved accounting forms, dependency verification notices, requested payment of debt letters, etc.

Note: You may choose to scan the records and maintain them electronically. Also, many banks now offer electronic statements that can be saved on computers and printed, when needed.

What Is an Accounting?

You may have to submit an accounting to VA, in which you will provide details about the VA funds you manage for the beneficiary. We may require you to account for the beneficiary's VA funds at any time so it is important for you to keep good records.

➤ Accounting Definition

An accounting is your written report about the funds you manage for the beneficiary. The accounting covers a length of time set by VA, typically one year.

An accounting consists of the following:

- Beginning account balance
- Funds you manage for the beneficiary
- Expenses paid from the funds you manage for the beneficiary
- Ending account balance

➤ Accounting Period

Accounting periods are generally scheduled at regular intervals, usually every year. VA will let you know in writing about the accounting period, which is usually the anniversary date of your appointment as fiduciary for the beneficiary.

➤ Accounting Due Date

The accounting is due within 30 days after the end of the accounting period. For example, if the accounting period is from June 1, 2013 to May 31, 2014, the accounting is due no later than June 30, 2014. This allows you enough time to review receipts, prepare the accounting forms, and obtain all financial documents for the entire accounting period.

If you do not submit a timely accounting, VA may:

- Temporarily stop benefit payments
- Appoint a new fiduciary
- Investigate whether you have misused funds

If there is a misuse investigation, you may have to answer questions and provide evidence. A misuse investigation is unlikely if you submit accurate accountings on time.

➤ Accounting Forms

You must submit a complete accounting for review. A complete accounting includes the following documents:

- VA Form 21P-4706b, Federal Fiduciary's Account (see page 23 for sample form)
- Original or unaltered copies of statements from the bank for the entire accounting period

You must sign in ink and date VA Form 21P-4706b, Federal Fiduciary's Account. You must also sign and date any attachments to VA Form 21P-4706b, Federal Fiduciary's Account. VA will return the accounting as incomplete if it is not properly signed in ink. Only one VA Form 21P-

4706b, Federal Fiduciary's Account, should be completed for the entire accounting period.

Note: In certain cases, VA will accept accounting forms sanctioned by a court or an abbreviated accounting to show how you used any retroactive VA funds. You may contact your fiduciary hub of jurisdiction for further information. (See page 31 for contact information.)

How Do I Account for the Beneficiary's VA Funds?

➤ Report Funds

You must report all funds you manage on behalf of the beneficiary in Section A on VA Form 21P-4706b, Federal Fiduciary's Account. You should not report any funds you do not manage as the beneficiary's fiduciary.

Examples of types of funds you may manage for the beneficiary include:

- VA funds
- Social Security Administration (SSA) funds
- Private retirement funds
- Military retirement pay
- Rental property funds
- Interest

➤ Report Expenses

You must report all payments made from the funds managed on behalf of the beneficiary in Section B of VA Form 21P-4706b. Include payments for rent, utilities, food, clothing, transportation, surety bond premiums, etc.

➤ Verify Assets

The ending balance on VA Form 21P-4706b must be the same as the balance on all bank statements as of the ending date of the accounting period (minus any outstanding transactions).

➤ Helpful Tips

- You should report the funds and expenses that are shown on the bank statements during the accounting period, as well as any outstanding transactions. For example, the accounting period ends on May 2nd, and you paid the beneficiary's rent on May 1st. This expense more than likely will not have cleared the bank by May 2nd but you still need to report the transaction on the accounting form.
- You can call VA and ask VA to change the ending date of the accounting period. VA can give you verbal approval over the phone to change the accounting period and you can request a confirmation letter to verify the change in writing. This will make it easier to match reported funds and expenses with actual funds and expenses shown on bank statements. It will also make it easier to verify assets at the end of the accounting period.

➤ Accounting Assistance

You will find an electronic version of VA Form 21P-4706b and an Accounting Tool to assist you in preparing the accounting at <http://benefits.va.gov/fiduciary/references.asp>.

The Accounting Tool is a Microsoft Word-based tool designed to walk a fiduciary through the preparation of an accounting. The Accounting Tool provides the following features:

- Data automation – Reduces the need for duplicate/erroneous information
- Automated calculations – Prevents erroneous manual calculations, which is anticipated to reduce the number of accountings disapproved due to miscalculations
- Itemizations – Allows for more detailed accounting for month-to-month expenses
- Instructions – Provides instructions on each section of the accounting, as well as provides FAQ pop-up screens
- Coversheet – Provides a coversheet detailing what attachments must be included with the accounting, as well as the address of the hub of jurisdiction

You may also contact your fiduciary hub of jurisdiction for personal assistance by calling toll-free at 1-888-407-0144.

How Do I Complete VA Form 21P-4706b, Federal Fiduciary's Account?

- From – Enter your name and complete address.
- To – Enter the address of the fiduciary hub. It is on the letter you received from VA advising you of the need for an accounting.
- Name of Veteran – Enter the full name of the Veteran.
- Name of Beneficiary – Enter the full name of the beneficiary, if the person entitled to VA funds is someone other than the Veteran.
- VA File Number – Enter the claim number or Social Security Number of the Veteran. You can find the number required in the top, right-hand corner on letters you receive from VA.
- Accounting Period “From” – The accounting period should be on the notification letter you received from VA.
- Accounting Period “To” – The accounting period should be on the notification letter you received from VA.

1. MONEY RECEIVED

- A. Total Estate at Beginning of Period – Enter $0, if this is the first accounting. If this is not your first accounting, enter the amount noted as the ending balance on your previous accounting.
- B. Amount Received from VA – Enter the number of months and the monthly amount of VA funds you managed on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. Also, enter the amount of any retroactive VA funds received during the accounting period. If the monthly amounts varied more than twice, you may enter additional amounts received from VA in lines 1E thru 1H. Additional space is also available in block 6, or you may attach additional sheets to the accounting. You must sign and date all sheets you attach to the accounting.

- C. Amount Received from Social Security – Enter the number of months and the monthly amount of the SSA funds you managed on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. Only enter these funds if the SSA recognizes you as the representative payee on behalf of the beneficiary.
- D. Interest Earned on Deposits – Enter the amount of interest received during the entire accounting period for funds deposited in a bank.
- E-H. Amount Received from Other Sources (List Items in 1E thru 1H) – Enter the amount of funds from other sources you managed on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. Only enter these funds if you are recognized as the fiduciary on behalf of the beneficiary for this other source of funds.
- I. Total Received (Add Lines 1A thru 1H) – Enter the total of lines 1A thru 1H to include any funds listed on additional sheets. This is the total amount of funds you managed on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period as fiduciary. Compare this fund information to the bank statements to ensure all funds were properly reported on VA Form 21P-4706b.

2. MONEY SPENT

- A. Room and Board/Rent – Enter the number of months and the monthly amount paid for room and board, rent, or mortgage payments on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. Enter the total amount of funds paid for this expense.
- B. Clothing – Enter the amount of money paid for the beneficiary's clothing and shoes.
- C. Entertainment – Enter the amount of money paid for the beneficiary's entertainment.

- D. Personal Use – Enter the number of months and monthly amount paid for the beneficiary’s personal use. Enter the total amount of funds paid for this expense.
- E. Dependent(s) Support – Enter the number of months and monthly amount paid for the support of any dependent(s) of the beneficiary. Enter the total amount of funds paid for this expense.
- F. Fiduciary Fee if Approved by VA – This is not applicable for most fiduciaries.
- G-L. Other (Specify) – Identify and enter amounts paid for other expenses such as utilities, eating out/groceries, insurance, etc., in lines 2G thru 2L.
- M. Total Spent (Add lines 2A thru 2L) – Enter the total of lines 2A thru 2L to include any expenses listed on additional sheets. This is the total amount of expenses you paid from the funds you managed on behalf of the beneficiary. Compare this expense information to the bank statements to ensure all expenses were properly reported on VA Form 21-4706b.

3. TOTAL ESTATE AT END OF PERIOD – Subtract 2M from 1I.

4. ASSETS AT END OF PERIOD

- A. Cash on Hand (Not on Deposit in Bank) – Enter the total amount of the beneficiary’s cash currently in your possession, not deposited in a bank, as of the ending date of the accounting period.
- B. Amount in Checking Account – Enter the total amount of funds from all sources of funds you manage for the beneficiary that is in the beneficiary’s checking account(s) as of the ending date of the accounting period.
- C. Amount in Savings Account – Enter the total amount of funds from all sources of funds you manage for the beneficiary that is in the beneficiary's savings account(s) as of the ending date of the accounting period.

- D. (1). Total Purchase Price of Savings Bonds Listed on Reverse (complete reverse for total in this field) – Enter the total price paid for all U.S. Savings Bonds from the beneficiary's sources of funds. Check the block marked "yes" if you purchased additional U.S. Savings Bonds on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. Check the block marked "no" if you did not purchase additional U.S. Savings Bonds on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. You must send a copy of all U.S. Savings Bonds to VA.
- E. (2). Were Savings Bonds Cashed during the Accounting Period? – Check the block marked "yes" if you cashed in one or more U.S. Savings Bonds on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period. Check the block marked "no" if you did not cash in any U.S. Savings Bonds on behalf of the beneficiary during the accounting period.
- F. Other (Specify) – Enter the total value of other assets not previously reported on the forms, such as Certificates of Deposit and Money Market accounts. Also, report any outstanding transactions reported during the accounting period that have not cleared the bank as of the ending date of the accounting period.

5. TOTAL ASSETS (Line 3 must equal Line 5)

If these two lines are not equal, you must find and fix the error. Re-calculate the amounts reported on the accounting and/or review bank statements, receipts, and ledgers to fix the error.

Common VA Forms

You may be required to review or submit forms for the beneficiary. VA will send you the forms, or you may download them from VA's website (<http://www.va.gov/vaforms/>). Some of the more common forms you may review and/or submit include:

- VA Form 21-674, Request for Approval of School Attendance: Use to report information to VA to determine entitlement to benefits for a Veteran's child who is between age 18 and 23 and attending school.
- VA Form 21-686c, Declaration of Status of Dependents: Use to determine marital status and eligibility for an additional allowance for dependents.
- VA Form 28-8890, Important Information About Rehabilitation Benefits: Provides general information about the Vocational Rehabilitation Program that provides services and assistance to certain Veterans with disabilities to get and keep a job or to achieve maximum independence in their daily living activities.
- VA Form 28-1900, Disabled Veterans Application for Vocational Rehabilitation: Use to apply for or receive information and assistance about Vocational Rehabilitation for Service-Disabled Veterans.
- VA Form 21-8940, Veteran's Application for Increased Compensation Based on Unemployability: Use to apply for increased benefits based on a claim that the Veteran's service-connected disability has prevented the Veteran from securing or retaining a substantially gainful occupation.
